Background of the COVID-19 Relief Project

The proposal to provide relief material to people affected by COVID-19 surrounding 8 villages of Kiran Grameen Coaching Center in the District of Varanasi; Uttar Pradesh, India emerged as a response to Covid-19 2nd wave posing great challenges both to public health as well as livelihood crisis. In a worrying development, India had reported a single-day highest spike of 4,14,188 new Covid-19 cases on 6th May 2021 and highest deaths approximately 4,529 on 18th May 2021.

The sudden overall impact of the second wave of COVID-19 was very much visible. On the economic front within few days GDP growth was negatively affected, as a result people at the rural areas, especially, "Below Poverty Line" population (BPL), Middle Class and nomad people (Mushar, Nats and Schedule Tribe and Schedule Tribe), etc. were out of work completely.

The situation in Varanasi was also very horrifying and people in the districts were left in the lurch by virus and lockdown. The government's measures or the lack thereof, failed to ease burden of the people, especially in the rural areas of Harahua, Pindra and Baragaon Development Blocks. Rural communities, young, elderly populations and individuals with disabilities and chronic health conditions were the worst hit by Covid-19.

Thus in this difficult times, Jan Vikas Samiti as a responsible organization took up the cognizance of the situation and approached FIDEI with a small proposal to reach out with relief material to the people affected by covid-19 surrounding 8 villages of Kiran Grameen Center in the District of Varanasi, Uttar Pradesh India with following intervention relief items on the urgent basis;
